Opinions expressed in the following pages are not necessarily those of the editor. Any part of the contents may be used when proper credit is given this publication. I would like to remind all fellow-publishers that this material, especially the reprinted newsclippings, are for your files, as to send every one of you a clipping would be impossible. Therefore, I take this way in keeping you posted on all local happenings.

This is a ONE-YEAR-ANNIVERSARY issue and to celebrate, I've added a few extra pages for this issue only.

I'd like to wish all my readers at this time a VERY MERRY CHRISTMAS and a HAPPY NEW YEAR!

About a month after the well-publicized Galt saucer landed in front of young Jack Stephens eyes in July, 1957, I went to interview Jack with a friend, who we will call Leslie. We had talked all afternoon about his experience which I wrote about in issue #4 of this publication. Jack had the urge to go back in the evening to the scene of the landing. We signified our approval and left right after we had supper. We trudged through the farmer's field and as we made our way along the path in the semi-darkness, my flashlight went out. I found out later the bulb burned out. We only had the light of the full moon to light our way. We stopped in the centre of the recently ploughed field overlooking the gully and conversed a bit more. Suddenly, I became aware of an orange-red light above the tree-tops on the far side of the gully. I immediately told my companions and Leslie said it had been there for about a minute but thought it was a light from a farmhouse window. We all watched it and memorized it's position in relation to the outline of the trees. It definitely was above the trees. We looked at each other mystified and when we looked again, it was gone. We didn't know what to think. A few minutes later, behind Jack's back, and much nearer, being at the side of our field about 50 yards away, appeared the same or similar orange-red light. This time it blinked on and off twice and disappeared. By the time my two companions could turn around, it was not to be seen. It seemed to be in a small tree or shrub. I ran over to the spot and could see nothing that could have made the light. Behind the shrubs was a steep incline down to another little lake or pond. You could see the reflection of the moon on the water below. We walked back to the Cedar Road, feeling we wouldn't see anymore that night and besides, it was getting chilly. We played with the idea that it was some sort of signal from the occupants of the saucer, even though it was now a month later, that the original contact by Jack was authentic. Who knows, the spacecraft could have returned but wished to remain invisible for reasons unknown to us. A check-up in the daylight two weeks later shed no further light on the situation and the lights still remain a mystery. The reason I had not written about this sooner was that I thought I may have had something more to add to this incident at a later date. A story called the "Joshua Tree Saucer Contact" in the November issue of SEARCH relates a similar experience with orange lights. I'm wondering if there is a relationship here and were we really this close to our visitors from space. I would like to hear from anyone who thinks they may have an answer to this phenomenon. Incidentally, there are more reports from the Galt area inside this bulletin.

STRANGE SIGHTS WATCHED IN THE SKY

Wallaceburg, Ontario - It was seen here again last night. For the second time in less than two weeks an unidentified flying object was sighted low in the northeast sky from this area. Last night a group of newsmen watched it through binoculars. Opinion as to the identity or nature of the sighted object differed. Several known physical sights however, were tentatively agreed upon.

1. The object flashed brilliant red, green and blue.
2. It was not a highflying weather balloon.
3. It was not a conventional aircraft.
4. It moved much as a kite would move when flying.

The flashing lights followed no particular sequence but were more brilliant at one time than another. Speculation as to its identity ran the gamut of imagination all the way from a helicopter to a flying saucer. Through binoculars unsteadiness in the holding made clear sighting impossible. It did not however, present a much different appearance to that of a star except for its movement and color. The suggestion that it was indeed a star whose light was being affected by the earth's atmosphere appeared to be unsound because its movements did not coincide with other stars in the same section of sky. A similar object in the northeast sky turned out to be a star after its pattern of behaviour had been examined over a half hour period. Similar sightings over the past three weeks all appear to confirm that it is something unidentified as yet.

An official of the Chatham-based Inter Continental Aerial Research Foundation said last night that he had received reports of the object from several spotters in the northern part of Kent but the object could not be identified. Inquiries to the RCAF brought dead silence. Two policemen from Wallaceburg, Constables William Laprise and Gerald Stanlick saw the object less than a week ago. (Chatham Daily News, October 6, 1958)

Central Intelligence's latest top-secret report, filed directly from U.S. agents in Moscow, states the Russians will launch a rocket carrying a man, or two, into space before Christmas.

AVRO AIRCRAFT will test fly its super-secret "FLYING SAUCER" early next year. Few details of the revolutionary aircraft have leaked out, especially since the project was taken over by the U.S. Air Force after the Canadian government washed its hands of the saucer in 1954. The Liberal Gov't. spent four hundred thousand dollars on the disc shaped aircraft. It is now believed Avro has two saucer projects under wraps. The one that will be unveiled early in the new year will be a vertical take-off and landing craft with wide military and civilian potential. To the military, it will be a flying jeep or an air observation craft. In its civilian role, it may be the successor to the helicopter.

In Sedgley, England, ghostly figures of 13 people in mediaeval robes have shown up on a color picture taken of the deserted high altar of Winchester Cathedral. In trying to de-bunk the photo, color-film experts said the picture is not a double-exposure as the camera is fitted with a preventive device against double-exposures. T.L. Taylor, an electrical engineer, had no explanation for the ancient figures. His wife and 16 year-old daughter were present when he took the photos of the altar. The first shows the choir stalls empty. The second shows the 13 people. The seated figures are dressed in robes and cloaks of Plantagenet or Tudor Times. One is bearded like a Biblical patriarch. Hmmm, always thought space-people had hairless faces or someone's kidding us.

A design for a moon power plant was introduced by Westinghouse. The plant uses only wire mesh and chemically coated plastic. When the sun's rays strike the plastic sheet, the chemically treated surface emits electrons which, in turn, are collected by the wire mesh. This process creates an electronic voltage which will exist as long as the sun shines.

IN THE CLOUDS - By Leslie Smith

This article is purely a thoughtful walk through the flying saucer field on a well-worn path, although there are many others branching from it. The network of these ideas is made up of the truth (to the best of the writer's ability), the outlets theories, not facts.

Have "space people" actually been contacted physically by earth people? This in itself is very interesting. What's behind it all? Why should we be contacted in the first place? And if so why shouldn't we know we are being contacted beyond the shadow of a doubt? Has anything concrete been accomplished by these "contacts"? Does anyone live any differently because of them?

In the beginning there has always been greed. Hence war has continually been man's lot. In the last half century man has been devising quicker and more certain ways to exterminate himself. The governments say it's for defence. Who dropped the first atom bomb? Who would be so hypocritical as to say that was a defensive action? When the odds become even and it is more sure to be you not the other guy who is going to get it, fear raises its ugly head. People begin looking "outside" themselves for an answer. It is religion they turn to, though it may be disguised under numerous names, one such could be the "Cult of the Contactees."

Intelligent and essentially good people could get the idea to exploit men's earnest (if selfish) desire to wish to keep their world (and themselves) in one piece. There is no doubt good in this approach. They write books for which they must make a profit or they could not follow it with another which the better known ones do. Their cry is we are not doing this for mercenary gain. Perhaps this is true. But by the same token they could not do it if they did not have money with which to do it and some to spare for the essentials of life. Where did they get their money?

They contact "space people" and come back with the same teachings (with variations) that Jesus gave us ~~two~~ centuries ago and which we believe and love simply because they are the most beautiful and simple (if we but knew) teachings the world has ever or will ever know.

A new attraction has been added. They come back with logical and feasible explanations for the miracles, which are very welcome and acceptable, and which every thinking person needs in this century. Faith is not enough no matter what the churches tell us. By that I mean it is not satisfying to all. Faith has to be built in the mind as well as in the spirit. What happened we believe, but how? He was not an ordinary man, true, but does this answer a probing mind?

Perhaps if the people would look "inside" themselves instead of outside for an answer the contact stories would cease. There would be no necessity for them. These contactees believe no doubt they do more good than harm, but if they are lying can good come from a lie? Then again is the coincidence in names premeditated or factual? Adamski - Adam; Bethurum - Bethlehem; Angelucci - Angel; Menger - Manger?

The contactees say if the "space-people" contacted government officials they would be shot at first and asked questions later. If the "space people" are as highly evolved as they would have to be, they would know whom to contact in the government telepathically (there are good thinking people everywhere as well as bad) and no undue violence would ensue.

Would the foregoing mean there are no such things as flying saucers? According to the many stories, there seem to be too many intelligent, down-to-earth people who have seen some unidentified object to give this a negative answer. Grant you, no two persons watching or seeing the same object (known or unknown) see it and describe it in the same manner. Two persons looking at a picture on the wall see it differently. It would be impossible to do otherwise, since their eyes aren't in the same place. But the picture is actually there.

I've personally spoken to sincere intelligent people who have seen a so-called "flying saucer". They certainly saw something unusual. I've seen, with two others, an unidentified "light" myself. I thought it was a light in a farmhouse on a hill. Subsequent checking revealed there was no hill at this particular point, just sky. So what goes on? (Concluded on Page 10)

SOMETHING FUNNY HAPPENS BUT IT'S UNFUNNY TO HIM

Riverside, Calif. (AP) -- Funny thing happened to Charlie Wetzel on the way home Saturday night.

A monster jumped out at him.

That's what he told authorities who planned to continue an investigation of the incredible story.

Wetzel, 24, a resident of nearby Bloomington, reported soberly that he was driving on a street near Riverside when a frightening creature jumped in front of his car.

"It had a round scarecrowish head," he said, "like something out of Halloween. It wasn't human. It had a longer arm than anything I'd ever seen. When it saw me in the car it reached all the way back to the windshield and began clawing at me.

"It didn't have any ears. The face was round. The eyes were shining like something fluorescent and it had a protuberant mouth. It was scaly, like leaves." Wetzel said he became terrified when the creature reached over the hood of his car and began clawing at the windshield. He said he reached for a .22 pistol he had in the car. "I held that pistol and stomped on the gas," he said. "The thing fell back from the car and it gurgled."

"The noise it made didn't sound human. I think I hit it. I heard something hit the pan under the car."

Sheriff's officers said Wetzel pointed at some thin sweeping marks he said the creature made on his windshield. They went to the scene of the claimed apparition but said they could find nothing to prove or disprove the story. (Credit - Bill Rawlinson, from The San Antonio Express - Nov. 10/58)

U.S. NAVY CLAIMS MYSTERY OBJECT

Bridgetown, Barbados, (CP) - A metal object containing a tape recorder and other equipment fished out of the sea at Consetts Bay on the east coast of Barbados has been claimed by U.S. officials.

"I am sure it is U.S. property," said Cmdr. G.R. Shacklette, commander of U.S. navy facility station at Harrison's Point. The object, slightly larger than a football, was brought ashore by fishermen. Police recovered the "iron ball" and reported the matter to the receiver of wrecks.

2% of "SAUCERS" Unexplained--Expert

Frankfurt, Germany, Nov. 7/58--(UPI)--German rocket expert Hermann Oberth said today the U.S. is working intensively on an electric space ship and he believed a manned space vehicle will reach the moon in "around 5 years. Oberth, 64, father of modern rocketry, also said he believes supernatural forms are watching the earth and have been doing so for a long time. He said: "I call these supernatural forms of life 'Uraniden' and believe they are very intelligent beings."

Oberth said a flight to the moon would be by an electric space ship and that it would be launched from a space station. He said rockets driven by the fuel in current use could not make a substantial journey into space. Of supernatural beings Oberth said: "If you strike out everything in the flying saucer reports that has been proved humbug, there still remains two per cent of these forms that cannot be explained by earthly means." (Toronto Daily Star -Nov. 7/58)

UFO FLASHES ACROSS THE SKY

Meaford, Ontario--Quite a number of residents reported seeing a disturbance that flashed across the sky early Tuesday morning.

Arthur Ferguson, on his way to Toronto said it looked like a chandelier flare or the exhaust from a large jet. The object headed straight down and made a noise like thunder. He said it came from the north and he was positive it crashed towards the earth. F.O. Bumstead of Meaford saw the same object and Richard Dorna who drives the mail truck between Meaford and Barrie also saw it clearly.

It was recently stated in Frank Edwards column in Fate magazine, about a Galt monster, 13 feet tall, arms ending in claws, and a green body, etc. There never was a Galt monster. He is referring to the one supposedly seen in Garson, Ontario, July, 1954. The story was fully covered by Gray Barker in Vol.2, #2 of The Saucerian and in Gray's opinion, was a hoax.

A 4 yr. old boy in Welwyn Garden City, England, died from suffocation when he used a plastic bag as a space helmet.

FOUR O.P.P. MEN SEE 'SAUCER AT PAISLEY
Walkerton, Nov. 1/58 --Four Provincial Police officers of the Walkerton detachment reported sighting a "pulsating" object hovering in the sky over Bruce county yesterday.

P.C. John McCutcheon and P.C. Edward Johnston sighted the large stationary object as they were on patrol near Paisley. It was four or five miles east of them. They radioed headquarters and P.C. Douglas Washburn and P.C. William Reis dashed out and corroborated the other officers' report. They sighted the same object 12 to 14 miles away. After comparing notes by radio they reached the unanimous conclusion that this was a flying saucer.

The officers reported back to their detachment headquarters that the object hovered about 3,500 feet above the ground, it was predominantly white but constantly changed to other shades and at times looked as if it carried four lights.

They claimed the "thing" remained motionless for 20 to 25 minutes then went out like a light. "There were many colors," said P.C. Reis, "red, green, white, mauve and blue." He said the gradual change of color looked like the effect of stage lights. The detachment also reported that Wash and McCutcheon saw a similar object in the district about three years ago. No other reports of yesterday's sighting were made to police headquarters and the officers admitted they were too interested in watching the object themselves to think of finding other spectators. (Toronto Daily Star-Nov. 1/58)

Astronomers of the Balmer-Mt. Wilson observatories believe that within 2 to 4 years man may be able to see back to the beginning of time. The 200 in. Hale telescope at Palomar has taken photos of stars 10,000,000,000 light years away.

British scientists hope to put an unmanned "robot laboratory" on the moon that could send back information for a future human lunar journey. The project could be carried out in 5 years with American help.

George Hunt Williamson was invited to the Queen's Scottish castle after lecturing in London on flying saucers and discoveries in Peru, South America.

Over in Italy, Antonio Ferraro, truck-driver, was slapped by a "something" which forced him to move out of his house. He had lived for only a week in the house with his wife and family. He said he not only saw "ghosts" and heard "voices" but "something" slapped him so hard it made him groggy. The final straw came when the "something" slammed a door on his nose. Owner Antonio Marchese, a Palmi businessman, called in Italian "ghost-hunters", but to no avail. The strange goings-on in the house began some 30 years ago. Mrs. Ferraro said it was like a "nightmare". "At first there were just shadows, and then there were 'voices' on Sunday", she said. A couple of days later she saw the "ghost" of a little girl wandering around the house. Ferraro laughed. That same evening, however, he heard strange whisperings and stones hitting the roof. He decided to get out. George Van Tassel explains "haunted houses", footsteps heard crossing the floor, etc., to the "invisibility" of the space-people who get that way by pressing a crystal which hangs around the neck. But will somebody explain why the good space-people would "belt" poor Ferraro, when they've got all outer space to live in? Maybe Antonio stepped on their invisible toes and they were getting even, it makes as much sense!

The fifth Ice Age is about to begin in the world and may bury much of N. America under an ice sheet 2 miles thick, say two leading American scientists. They are Maurice Ewing, director of Columbia University's Lamont Geological Observatory, and Wm. Donn, who directs meteorological research at Lamont. There is scientific evidence that the gigantic glaciers may begin within 100 years.

BOOK REVIEW.....

"FLYING SAUCERS AND THE STRAIGHT LINE MYSTERY"

By Aime Michel; 285 pages; Price: $4.50

As reviewed by Sally Townsend for the Toronto Globe and Mail

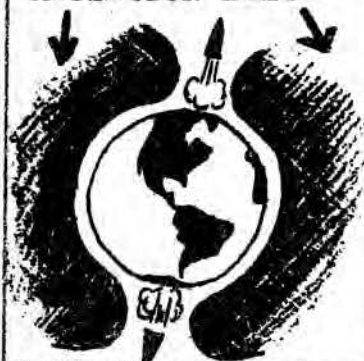

Flying saucers have not been very much in the news of late on this side of the Atlantic, but it seems plenty have been seen in Europe. These have been observed in a new way by Aime Michel, a Frenchman and author of a previous book, The Truth About Flying Saucers. The new and significant thing about this new book is presenting documentary evidence of a meaningful pattern which indicates presumably a guiding intelligence behind the latest UFO activity. The author declares he has discovered a means by which the movements of the saucers can be studied scientifically. He finds that the saucers travel in a straight line. He calls his discovery Orthoteny which means stretched in a straight line.

M. Michel feels that governments should not ignore the evidence of a strange phenomenon that can no longer be considered to be a psychological illusion. He says: "For if we persist in refusing to recognize the existence of these unidentified objects, we will end up, one fine day, by mistaking them for the guided missiles of an enemy; and the worst will be upon us." Anything worse than we already can bring upon ourselves one might ask?

LOOPHOLES INTO SPACERADIATION BELT

Radiation-free zones at N. & S. poles.

The recently discovered band of lethal radiation around the earth may not be a barrier to space travel. There are radiation free zones near the poles through which man could safely leap into space. Otherwise, the radiation belt extends some 1,400 miles out.

On October 22, 1958, The Galt Evening Reporter said in the columns, "Have you noticed an exceptionally large object in the Eastern sky recently? It was visible again Monday night and seemed to be larger than a star. The newspaper had several calls regarding the object. Homer Schaefer, area reporter for this area told me it wasn't Mars. Mr. Garrick of Galt is credited with this item and the next two.

Oct. 11/58- Canadian and American Air Force officers and the RCMP held a secret session "somewhere in Kitchen-er" this morning. The conference was called in the hope of establishing the nature of a large mysterious flying object, that frightened a horse which in turn tossed it's rider. The rider, Mrs. Laverne Asmussen, of Preston sustained a compound fracture of the right leg. The incident occurred Saturday p.m., Sept. 27. Some eye-witnesses said the object might be likened to what they have read about flying saucers. All agreed it was flying low at tremendous speed and perilously low. "It had double fins," commented Ken Mathews, proprietor of Sunset Riding Club. "I could see no markings on it." The day was bright and clear. The object shot out of the Chicopee hills at tree top level.

Oct. 14/58--Many Galt and district citizens were mystified last evening when mysterious flashing rays of lights appeared on the Northern horizon. The origin of the lights are unknown. They appeared to stem toward the earth in long fingers reaching from the dark evening sky. By the angle of travel they were judged to strike the Kitchener-Elmira area. A witness said it was not the aurora borealis.

Cottagers at Oxley, Ontario, are puzzled by blobs of semi-transparent jelly-like lumps which are floating to the beaches. This form of life first became known in Lake Erie when it was found by fishermen off Pelee Island last summer. The blobs are semi-solid to the point where it can be cut with a knife, and retains its shape and varies in size from that of a melon to an egg. There is evidence of having been attached to either a rock or shell.

In the June issue of UFO JOURNAL appeared an article about a burning mystery object in Lake Erie off Long Point which is about 100 miles away from Oxley as the crow flies. The HMCS Scatori investigated, found the object, but failed to raise it to the surface. There were no missing ships. When a fisherman discovered the object had become fouled in the nets, he reported it to the authorities. Your editor decided to do a little investigation on his own. I wrote to Cmdr. Bruce McGregor who was the skipper of the Scatori, and asked what they had found after they had tried again to raise the object to the surface. I received the following reply--"In reference to your recent letter I would suggest that you contact Sgt. Craig of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police at London, Ont." Aha, the plot thickens! Having written, I obtained this answer--"This is to acknowledge your correspondence dated 28/9/58 and to advise that the alleged burning object referred to remains unidentified." Methinks something smells fishy here and it isn't the fish in Lake Erie. O.K., UFO JOURNAL, want to carry the ball from here?

America's first spaceship will be in the making shortly at Redstone Arsenal, Huntsville, Alabama. The super booster will have a thrust of 500,000 for a satellite launching.

Communist China has produced a small man-made sun which produces temperatures of "tens of millions of degrees Centigrade", radio Peiping reports.

Back from his balloon trip 19 miles above the earth, Air Force Lt. Clifton W. McClure described the rim of outer space as like living in a "Fluorescent tube." At 99,300 feet the sky is blacker than night sky... it is a deep black of night that is indescribable.

At the Stork Club they were talking about the flying saucer that landed in Paris. A little man with big eyes jumped out and said: "Take me to Brigitte Bardot -- and to heck with your leader!" Say, these space people aren't so dumb after all.

HANDS OFF MY MOON, YOU MEN

Guntown, Miss. (UPI) -- Charlene Magers holds claim to a huge, round piece of real estate, but doubts she'll ever set foot on it. It's the Moon. Miss Magers, a student of Mississippi State University, revealed that the claim on the moon was filed on her behalf Oct. 14, 1950, at Tupelo, Miss. She apparently has a clear title, too. When a Knoxville, Tenn., man tried to file a claim, recently the U.S. Reclamation Bureau denied it on the grounds that Miss Magers had beat him to it. Her claim reads: "I, Charlene Magers, am hereby placing claim on this planet moon, and shall defend said title against any persons or nations that might attack."

She has not yet revealed any plans for carrying out such defence. Nor has she voiced any objection to attempts to reach the moon with a rocket. She isn't the only member of her family with a celestial claim. Her cousin, Mitchell Herring, holds title to Mars. (Windsor Daily Star-Nov. 19/58)

The other day two commercial travellers going from Ottawa to Kingston, both in Ontario, reported seeing after dark, "an unusual object in the cloudless sky--a round object about the size of the moon, speeding off to the north faster than a jet plane." This was in the beginning of November.

On Oct. 8, the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission thumped the northern corner of the test site with an underground explosion. The blast in a tunnel 415 feet inside a towering desert mesa. A week later in Brawley, Calif., an earthquake hit the northern Imperial Valley. Two smaller shocks followed.

The UFO JOURNAL reports on all subjects and topics.

From: Public Relations, Canadian Pacific Airlines, Vancouver Airport, British Columbia.

Russia's man-made moon is no piece of green cheese. This is the considered opinion of veteran CPA Captain Robert A. Kerr, who this week (Oct. 1957), became the first commercial pilot in aviation history to chase an earth satellite with a DC-3 aircraft.

Kerr was skipper of the "Satellite Special" chartered by an enterprising local newspaper to chase the "moon" over Vancouver. He knows whereof he speaks, as he is believed to be the first person to sight "Sputnik", Russia's earth satellite, from an airliner.

At 18,000 feet, he had a grand-stand seat high in the heavens, when it happened. For a brief, heart-stopping moment, the Captain thought he was undergoing a severe attack of indigestion--he had seen two moons in the sky. The second heavenly body, he insists, was not to be confused with the comely CPA stewardess on board the aircraft.

The actual sighting was made at 5.28 am Tuesday, visibility was almost perfect.

"I saw a strange object moving among the stars," explained Kerr. "It looked just like a star and was moving 30 degrees up from the horizon. "It was in view fairly brightly for three to four seconds. I lost it then, but picked it up again almost directly in front of us a few seconds later. It was in view a little longer this time, and was moving in a horizontal trajectory." This was the predicted path for the satellite's journey.

"It seems impossible that one could pick up a satellite with the naked eye," Kerr said. "But I definitely saw something, as visibility was exceptionally clear up there." So did two of the 11 reporters on board. The others, aloft on their first slightly rough air trip, were concentrating more on their queasy stomachs than on moon hunting. Captain Kerr received a medal from CPA stewardess Jean Pollard. Engraving on the back of the award says---For action above and beyond the call of duty, and for general proficiency in bird watching, flying saucer viewing and satellite sighting."

WEATHER --- H-BOMB --- by Wade Mosby
 Yesiree, strange things are happening to our weather. Take this news item: "Breakfast changes have developed in the weather along the northern part of the South American west coast and the Galapagos Islands. The Galapagos archipelago has been transformed from a bleak island desert into a steaming jungle... Panama has had abnormal rains... Northern Peru excessive heat... Colombia greater humidity than ever before... Rains are falling in the desert of Chile and Peru." Now before you declare "I don't care what those scientists say, I think the atom bombs, etc.," it should be noted that the above was published in 1941, -- four years before the first nuclear explosion. Anyone can go back through the dusty files and discover that weather has been confounding people since the beginning of history. The ancients blamed its vagaries on the various gods in office at the time. Most of us today insist on physical explanations for our thunder.

Alex Barris, reporter, says: "Somehow, I couldn't swallow the notion that a man would accept an invitation to move to another planet via flying saucer and insist on taking his wife and child along as casually as if he were going to Lake Simcoe for the weekend." (Toronto Tely)

HOLD THE PRESS--NEWS FLASH!

A reddish spot in the moon crater Alphonse, was discovered by Soviet scientist Nikolai Kosyrev at Crimea Observatory on Nov. 12. British astronomers branded as "nonsense" the Soviet report that a volcano erupting on the moon had been photographed. The general opinion at this moment is that the craters on the moon are caused by meteorites, not by volcanoes. However, on November 19, H. Percy Wilkins, British astronomer, said that he observed the reddish patch on the moon which might confirm Russian claims. He said the red patch on the moon could have been caused by "gases--anything of that nature."

Mysterious signals from the sky recently may have been a Russian space vehicle going past the moon and Mars.

GLOW LIGHTS SKY FROM ONTARIO TO PENNA.

A flash of light lit up the sky on Oct. 21st, for about a minute. Dunlap Observatory gave their stock answer to any lights seen in the sky, saying it was a meteor. P.C. Stanley Hunter of Barrie said it looked like "A shooting star" only much brighter, and lit up the area for miles around. Other sightings at 3.39 a.m. came from London, Niagara Falls, Perth, Tillsonburg, Toronto and western New York state. State police from Lake Ontario to Pennsylvania saw a bright bluish-white glow that shone with the brightness of daylight. A spokesman at Toronto's Malton Airport said the flash appeared to be on the airport boundary and looked like a flare. Nothing had been found and that fog had hemmed in the airport all night.

This brilliant flash seen by Roland Michaud of Godbout, Saguenay, province of Quebec, said that "we suddenly felt a big push of wind, followed just a few instants after by the flash, and right then a "big bang", undoubtedly caused by the impact of an object of great magnitude hitting the ground and sending violent tremors of high intensity like earthquake vibrations, around the whole area.

Rev. Maurice Buist, director of the geophysical observatory at the College of St. Jean de Brebeuf, Montreal, said the records show a minor quake close to the time mentioned.

Mrs. W.H. Brooke of Val David, heard "a noise like a large explosion and then some large thumps."

Doug Hapes of Buffalo, N.Y. sent me the following information which concludes this specific case. Mr. Wayne Stanley saw the same thing over Manitoba on Oct. 15, and on the 22nd, he caught the tail end of a report over CKX, Brandon, saying that a woman saw a flash and it was sighted over two other towns in British Columbia, particularly the Vancouver area. Later, the radio station reiterated that it never made the transmission.

On Sept. 22, over CJBC, Toronto, a report that a guard at a petroleum factory in Nova Scotia, saw 23 objects passing overhead and that 4 UFOs were spotted by radar earlier, was denied, all this after many heard it in Buffalo. Samuel J. Ciurea, Jr., Director of the Saucerian Research Centre, 155 Third St., Rochester 5, N.Y., reported to Doug that a friend of his was listening in on Radio Australia on Oct. 21, and heard that these (or this) flash was sighted over Indonesia, New Zealand and Australia.

The Buffalo Courier-Express reports the next item. Dated Nov. 1 (AP) from Plymouth, England,--A blue-green flash blazed over the western end of the English Channel tonight. The brilliant flash lasted five seconds and was sighted by a dozen ships and Coast Guard units. It set off a flurry of activity at the RAF Sea Rescue Center here, but authorities reported no plane was reported missing in the area.

A meteorological office spokesman in London said, "It is unlikely to have been caused by lightning or to have some other meteorological origin."

A Coast Guardsman in Southwest Cornwall said, "For a few seconds the whole sky was lit up with a great big blue glare that was nothing like a rocket or anything else I know."

The French liner Colombie, in a radio message from the Guernsey area, said the flash seemed to take a downward path out of the sky. "We take it to be a meteor or meteorite," the ship's message said.

Chalk River, Ontario: Canadian scientist solution to the problem of getting rid of an atomic reactor's ashes is now being tested. Radioactive wastes are melted into solid glass blocks, then buried in preferably dry ground. The glass and its radioactive content dissolves only minutely over the centuries.

The U.S. Air Force announce it will deactivate the 280,000 member Ground Observer Corps and close up its 16,000 civilian observation posts. The reason: Supersonic bomber and missiles have made eyes and ears obsolete as warning devices against attack by air.

So far, SAUCERS, SPACE & SCIENCE has been published every two months, but does not necessarily have to keep to this schedule. You may receive your copy before the two months are up, or longer than two months, depending on how much information is worth printing.

University of Michigan scientists have come pretty close to catching nothing in a bottle and measuring it. They launched rocket-propelled bottles into the upper atmosphere. In space, the bottles opened & shut. They returned, full or empty--of substances collected 60 miles up. Neon & helium gases were found in minute amounts.

IN THE CLOUDS -- (Concluded)

This article has been written simply with the hope that more people will try to stick to the truth with no embellishments. We are all innately selfish, but if we'd only realize we can't get along without those around us being healthy in mind and body, and we individually are the ones who will help them to be that way, thus helping ourselves. We'll have to admit that these U.F.O.'s by just "being" are certainly making people think.

"THE MASTER MIND"

"The Master Mind" is a profusely illustrated publication of William Damon portrait painter and humorist, who is credited with being the first to overcome the force of gravity. He has done this by using centrifugal force and simple physical laws. The entire contents have been copyrighted 1958 by William Damon, Box 8, Liberty, Mo. When the FULL IMPACT of this publication (Bulletin 'A') becomes apparent, it will doubtless become a valuable collectors' item! Price for Bulletin 'A' is only $1.00.

A limited number of subscriptions to "The Master Mind" are available for a donation of $5.00 per year, mailed to the above address. "FLYING SAUCERS EXPLAINED" is the title of a forthcoming book being prepared and written by William Damon. Mr. Damon is making available to readers of "Saucers, Space and Science", for a limited time only, the following...

You've likely heard about this famous UFO book...

They Knew Too Little About Flying Saucers

now read this condensation of that great literary work!

As the scene opens, we find famed saucer-researcher, A. Bendwell, seated in his study carefully studying flying saucer data.

I'm all upset,
I'll read some saucer books to calm down.

I know I've got the answer.
I'll try my files....

Now that I've given it all the information, an answer should be forthcoming in a few seconds..... I'll press a button and then...

I HAVE IT!
THE ANSWER!

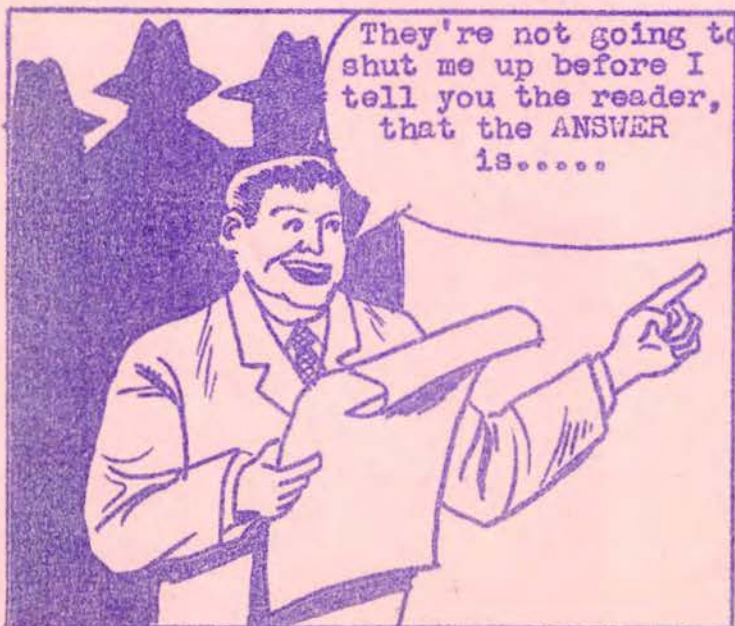

NO, NO,
IT CAN'T BE,
it wouldn't
be THAT!
IT'S FANTASTIC!

I must phone this news to the A & P immediately!

They're not going to shut me up before I tell you the reader, that the ANSWER is.....
